BACKGROUND INFORMATION

A public hearing was held and the amendments were recommended for approval by the Planning Commission on Monday, September 24, 2018. No public comments were received on the amendments at the public hearing. Draft meeting minutes are attached. Council then held a first reading on the proposed text amendments on Monday, October 1, 2018. Following the first reading by Council, Planning Staff added new language (§155.149A(G)) to clarify that mobile food vendors must vend in an outdoor location.

Proposed modifications include changes to §155.029 "Definitions", §155.036 "Schedule of Land Uses", §155.046 "B-2 Thoroughfare Mixed-Use District", §155.048 "M-1 Light Industrial District", and §155.049 "TCD Town Center District", and establishment of new sections §155.149A "Mobile Food Vending", and §155.149B "Mobile Food Court or Park".

SCOPE OF SERVICES

JUSTIFICATION

The proposed mobile food vending text amendments are being initiated by the City of Inkster due to recent expressed interest in operating Food Trucks and Food Truck Courts within the City. Currently, the City's zoning code does not address the zoning or land use needs of food trucks within the city. The proposed zoning text amendments have been written and are intended to work in conjunction with, and not duplicate or conflict with any language found in "Chapter 122: Vendors, Garage Sales" of the Inkster Municipal Code.

The text amendment language is attached for review.

CITY OF INKSTER

brand overview

When Marcus Swift came to the "Nankin" area in 1825, there were already two dwellings. One belonged to Marenus Harrison, the other to James Wightman. The Harrison family were the first known family to settle in Inkster. Willis Harrison, who served 28 years as Justice of the Peace of "Nankin Township," was related to the original Joseph Harrison, who settled here.

Of Harrison's his three sons, Leonard (1791 - 1841), was an assessor in "Nankin Township," while Marenus Jr. (1795 - 1849), and Charles (1799 - 1887), were engaged in real estate and farming.

The other early settler was James Wightman, who purchased land in 1825 within the bounds of what is now the City of Inkster. Records show that Marenus bought and sold lands, and made his first purchase in 1822, at the northwest corner of Michigan Avenue and Inkster Road.

Marenus Jr. and his wife, Hannah are buried in the Union Chapel Cemetery, as are many of the Harrison's and early settlers.

The city namesake, Robert Inkster, was born March 27, 1828, in Lerwick, Shetland. He was 4 years old when his father passed away and he and his mother took a ship to America. They ported in New York, and spent some time in Ohio and Illinois before coming to Detroit.

In 1853, Inkster received citizenship and in 1855, he bought a steam powered sawmill with a contract to furnish fuel and ties for the nearby railroad. The "red mill" was located on what became Inkster Road, just south of Michigan Avenue.

The Post Office, established in 1857, under the name "Moulin Rouge" (meaning red mill) was renamed "Inkster" in 1963.

Robert Inkster engaged heavily and widely in real estate, selling his land in Highland Park, to Henry Ford. He had dealings in Ohio, Illinois, Nebraska and Montana. As late as 1881, he was buying land on Jim Daly Road (now Beech Daly Road). In 1869 there was a Robert Inkster Dry Good Store at 97 Woodward Avenue.

When many African Americans from the south moved north for factory jobs with Ford Motor Co., they were met with segregation and a lack of housing options. Some cities would not allow them to buy houses or even live in the city. To find housing close enough to the factory to enjoy the $5 a day salary offered at the time, many African Americans moved to Inkster, which was just close enough to afford them the opportunity to work the high-paying jobs.

During the Great Depression, Ford Motor Company's Sociological Department helped Inkster workers and others through the depression with home repairs and low-price, high quality food from the newly built local commissary. While the Sociological Department helped and checked in on all Ford employees, they took a special interest in Inkster. Ford also helped Inkster with the construction of a medical center and a school to provide support for the safety and well-being of Ford workers during tough economic times. The Inkster Project, as Ford's support was called, created a unique tie between the automaker and the city until the program ended in 1941.

The City of Inkster was incorporated in 1964.
